

Plant Manager – Pressure Treating Plant

A leading Canadian manufacturer of pressure treated wood products has an immediate opportunity for a Plant Manager at a British Columbia plant.

The Plant Manager will lead an operation producing the very best treated wood products designed for use in residential and commercial environments where aesthetics and environmental standards are paramount. Ensuring the highest employee safety standards; quality products; and cost control are fundamental responsibilities.

While management experience in treated wood is a significant asset, persons with a successful record of leadership in other sectors of the forest / wood products industry are urged to consider this opportunity. Persons with a 'hands-on' operating style and having competent organizational, business acumen and team leadership skills are of particular interest.

A detailed position description is available upon request.
